

ad
ed
on
of
and
Go
e le
ill
r ig
y
f
n-

ancing academics and extra-curricular activities.

Abhishek Chivukula, from the Richman and Company, also known as Richman and Co, a college band from Symbiosis Institute of International Business (SIIB), talks about music, moving out of their comfort zone and more.

Formed in July 2013, the main genre the band performs are progressive rock, alternative rock, Vedic rock and a fusion of Bollywood and Western music.

Chivukula said, "Richman and Co is defined not by the people it is represented by, but by the opportunities and honour that those people receive. The band is not limited to a team of five or six, but of all those who once came together under this fraternity to fulfil their musical dreams and explore their creative talents.

"Founded in 2013, the band has hosted more than 30 musicians and has given them a chance to perform on bigger stages. Even today, the band consists of 16 very versatile musicians and singers. Most musicians in the band can play two or more instruments and are keen to explore their versatilities on stage."
Viraj Joshi, student of MIT

Members of Encore, a band from Symbiosis Centre for Management Studies, during a gig. HT PHOTO

nitely worth it."
Then there is Abhibyanjana Thatal, an individual artist who has recently released a single titled Groovy Girl and has performed in multi Pune and Sik